A Frontier Drama.

Feeding thirty thousand people at a prairie dinner is no small matter even in these days yet this is what was done by the owners of the "101" ranch in Oklahoma Sunday. The buffalo hunt and other features of the "Wild West" show, including the care and feed for 5,000 Indians and hundreds of cowboys who participated is said to have cost the Miller Brothers, owners of the ranch, the sum of $10,000.

This, one of, if not the biggest entertainment of the character ever given, is in all likelihood the last of its kind and with it closes the semblance of frontier scenes in which the chief actors were important parts of the great original drama.

The chapter of reality on the Western frontier with its romantic daring and dash, its hardships and its chivalry was closed years ago and now, barring a few grey haired people, nothing but its history remains with us. But those now living who formed a part of this history will never, no never forget its associations and those yet to follow, many generations hence, will take delight in its material parts when they are touched up and converted into romances by writers yet unborn.

Yes, we may well say that the big "blowout" at the "101" ranch closes a drama in which the last parts of the "real thing" appeared in force.

Quality Counts

The old adage that blood will tell is as true today as when first spoken. Quality has always counted and at no time was it worth more than it is today.

Quality counts in the horse and cattle markets. Look over the records and you will observe that pound weight it frequently brings more than double money over scrub products.

Quality is here to stay and the horse, mule and cattle raiser that hitches on to this truth and pulls the strongest in his practice is going to be the man who in the future can wear diamonds on his shirt front.

And there is no better time to cinch on to this quality idea than right now. Get good blood, the best to be had, to improve your stuff as soon as possible and before prices advance. If you must hang on to the ring-streaked, speckled, piled and limebacks of Jacob's time by all means let the other half of the herd—the bull—be one of today's thoroughbreds.

Pass the Scrub

With the advance in the price of grazing lands the scrub must, unless we raise them at a loss, be relegated to the rear. Under present conditions, no man can afford to grow any other kind of stock than the improved breeds. If he can't do this or more likely won't do it, he had better quit the business and try something else. The day of the scrub in all kinds of stock has gone forever and to succeed in the stock business we must pass them by.

FROM CAPTAIN BOBBITT.

Editor Canyon City News:

Through the medium of your paper I desire to call the attention of Confederates and all others to the fact that the sixth annual reunion of the Camp of The Stonewall Jackson United Confederate Veterans Association, will take place at Canyon City Texas July 11th 1905, and continue four days; each day's program will be replete with interesting engaging and attractive features beyond that heretofore attempted at our former reunions. Among which will be parades of cowboys, fraternal societies and Confederate Veterans, baloon ascensions, base ball games, fine stock shows, agricultural exhibits and etc., showing the advancement, development, richness and advantages of our beautiful and famous region of the Panhandle of Texas, which with outstretched arms, solicits and summons all to attend, see and fall in love (as all do who see it) with this lovely, rich and health giving section. I call especial attention to the fact that speeches will be made by Confederate Veterans and other distinguished Texans,—come one, come all, enjoy and add to the enjoyment of this great occasion. A remnant of the grey battalions of the South's immortal army will be there, the counterpart and duplicate in principle and in action in peace and in war of the re-nowned and glorious army of the sublime and majestic Washington.

The Confederate soldier like the patriots of 1776, fought for home and for the best and highest form of local self-government, constitutional liberty and equal rights ever conceived by the mind of man, and with a bravery and self-sacrifice and devotion to duty never excelled, and on fame's plane of honor places him by the side that of the patriots of 1776. Come and meet with them, few remain, time is thinning their ranks and will soon claim them all and leave them only a historic and sacred memory. See them and greet them while you can and learn from them the history of the times and stirring events and scenes through which they passed, and drink in from their lips the spirit of freedom and equal right that actuated them in 1861 and the fathers of 1776.

J. T. BOBBITT,
Commander of Stonewall Camp
U. C. V., 144.

In a letter from Judge Buie, who is attending the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church in session at Fresno, California, received this week, he says that the union measure carried by a vote of 137 to 110. The Judge says farther that the opposition will stay with the church in the union. This is a matter of great satisfaction to those who have favored the union of these great churches.—Stamford News.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

Needs no introduction to the public. It has been in use for over thirty years and has proved itself to be the most successful remedy yet discovered for bowel complaints. This remedy is for sale here by S. V. Wirt, druggist.

Charles Joseph Bonaparte who on July 1 will succeed Hon. Paul Morton as secretary of the navy, is a grandson of Jerome Bonaparte, king of Westphalia.

The Man Behind the Gun.

It has been said that Napoleon, upon hearing of the victory of Jackson at New Orleans, with his handful of American soldiers, over the veterans of the British army who had conquered him, sent to America for the purpose of obtaining samples of the guns that had wrought such havoc among General Packenham's forces in that great battle but when his messenger returned, stating that the weapon used was the ordinary flint-steel hunting rifle of the American frontiersmen, he exclaimed: "I see how it is; it was not the guns, but the men behind the guns. Had I such soldiers as these I could conquer the world." It seems, then, that Napoleon was the real author of this famous phrase.—The Earth.

Just What Every One Should Do.

Mr. J. T. Barber of Irwinville, Ga., always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand ready for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr. Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which is one of the best medicines I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it has proved to be the best medicine I ever used." Sold by S. V. Wirt, druggist.
